David S. Bathory, Psychologist Psy.D.

I am a Psychologist/Neuropsychologist who specializes in trauma and gender identity (WPATH member). I offer individual and group therapy for people exploring their identity and/or transitioning. I also provide evaluations for HRT and gender affirming surgeries (usually within 3 sessions). For people who are traveling or out of state a weekend evaluation is available. My practice also includes specialties in Relational Dynamics, complex trauma, rare neuropsychological disorders and lecturing internationally. I help people across the world to find ways to work together and will help you to be more you and move forward in your journey. People ask why I practice in the areas I do? Because too many people are lost in the system, misdiagnosed, or mistreated by others who choose to label them and not see that they are unique and valued individuals.

I use my own internationally recognized theory, Relational Dynamics, narrative therapies, art and other means to help you find your direction in a safe and supportive environment. My practice includes all ages and genders.

M Brett Debney, Counselor, MS, EdS, LPC

Do you feel judged, dismissed, invisible? Do you feel like you cannot share with others who you truly are, and no place feels like home? You are not alone. It is hard when you feel like you do not fit in, like you cannot be the real you, especially during those times when life's challenges become overwhelming and you need understanding, support and connection. You do not have to feel so distant from others. I want to help you learn to make meaningful connections with the important people in your life and with the world around you.

Societal and family expectations can make you feel marginalized, alienated. But you CAN be your true self AND develop healthy relationships, reduce stress, and improve coping skills. I can help you build self-acceptance and self-efficacy so that you feel connected to yourself and the world you live in.

There is hope. When you are ready to commit to yourself and to your wellbeing, I will be at your side. This first step of reaching out is the hardest, but you can do it. See my website for more details of how I can help you right now.

Regina Alexander, Clinical Social Worker, LCSW

Therapy can be a time of learning about yourself, facing your fears, and growing in different areas of life. It isn't easy to ask for help when we need it. I see my role as empowering you to achieve your best possible life. Our focus may include struggles with personal identity due to life changes, sexuality, or unhealthy relationships. You are the expert on your life; I am here to work with you to meet your goals and help get your life back under control. Our work together will consist of you leading and me supporting your identified goals.

I work with clients who experience depression, anxiety and low self-esteem, trauma response, issues with sexuality or gender, substance abuse, codependency and perfectionism. I also provide assessments for cross-sex hormones to transgender individuals. Contact me today to begin working toward a better life.

In addition to therapeutic services I provide clinical supervision for those seeking their full clinical social work licensure. As such, I meet weekly with my supervisees to discuss cases, offer another perspective, and provide feedback on ethical dilemmas. I also can be contracted to credential professionals with various insurance panels.

Camille A Leaver, Psychological Associate, MA, LPA

Regardless of the unique issues a person brings to therapy, I am always working towards helping them develop greater self-awareness and self-acceptance. The things which limit people or cause suffering often began as strategies for survival. I seek to create a safe, nonjudgmental environment in which I can help my clients become more aware of their strategies and release emotional burdens related to them. I have observed that as individuals develop self-awareness, they can shift away from previously automatic thoughts, behaviors, and feelings. They start to see more options available to them, and growth and healing can occur.

I have completed extended training in Hakomi mindfulness-based psychotherapy, Internal Family Systems, and EMDR. I offer treatment for depression, anxiety, relationship conflicts, ADHD, and/or a history of abuse or other trauma. I also offer ADHD assessments for children, adolescents, and adults.

With decades of professional experience I am a counselor and coach who understands life and work challenges. I am described as a person who is easy to talk to, who puts people at ease. No matter what the circumstance it is possible to identify one's personal assets and find a positive solution. Each person is unique and deserves a tailored approach to success.

My coaching experience allows me to identify the strengths of my clients to then use those strengths to leverage developmental needs. As an adjunct faculty member of the Center for Creative Leadership I have training in many instruments that work as assessment tools to provide the challenge and support necessary for change.

Catherine A Jourdan, Counselor, MAEd, LPC

Throughout over 3 decades of professional experience I have consistently received feedback from my clients that they trust me and find me easy to talk with and appreciate that I engage them in a true give and take dialogue. I seek to understand what is happening with clients in their emotional, physical and spiritual lives, emphasizing the importance of the body-mind connection and working with people to examine their lives from each of these perspectives, making changes as needed. I enjoy working with people from a wide range of cultures, lifestyles and religious backgrounds.

I have experience working with clients to overcome the negative effects of anxiety, depression, stress, divorce, controlling/manipulative or abusive relationships and sexual identity issues, assisting them in the development of the skills, confidence and self awareness needed to alter one's negative patterns of behavior and to improve relationships.

I am the co-author of People Skills Handbook: Action Tips for Improving Emotional Intelligence, released in May 2012. As an executive coach with over 25 years experience working with business executives and leaders in non-profit organizations I am able to bring that awareness into the counseling relationship.

I know it isn't always easy to seek help when life is difficult, so I appreciate the courage it can take to even consider entering into a therapeutic relationship. In my practice, honoring each client's unique journey toward wholeness and health is of the utmost importance; therefore, I strive to create a dynamic in which we collaborate to establish goals and set the pace for our work together. While I have strong therapeutic training and helpful insights into human nature and relationships, you are always the expert on yourself, your struggles, and your goals.

As an LPC & Certified Sex Addiction Therapist Candidate, I offer psychotherapeutic services to adolescents, adults, couples, and families - regardless of race, gender identity, age, religious background, or sexual orientation. My areas of interest include anxiety, depression, addiction & families of addicts, sexual compulsions, and relationship difficulties and transitions.

My practice is LGBT-affirming, and I work with clients around a range of issues involving sexuality and gender. Additionally, I can offer an integrated perspective for those who are interested in exploring the intersection of mental health & spirituality, which I understand as a concept far broader than religious background.

I specialize in working with males age 13 and older, with a particular emphasis on boys and young men under 25. The issues I typically address are anger-acting out-not following rules, anxiety, relationship problems, gender issues,GBTQ issues, and sexual performance issues. With teens and young adults, I often focus on being responsible, positive and negative consequences of behavior, learning how to manage stress, developing healthy relationships, and charting a path forward. I also work with male abuse survivors of all ages, addressing many of the issues listed above as well as boundary issues and developing a healthier sense of self. My approach is both male- and teen-friendly and often adopts a problem solving approach. I am the author of "Challenging Casanova: Beyond the stereotype of the promiscuous young male" and co-author of the leading Men's Studies text "The Masculine Self" (5th edition, with

I have an avid interest in helping children, adults, and families dealing with special needs, including Autism Spectrum Disorder, mental and/or physical challenges, and Academically Gifted and Talented. I also specialize in supporting clients and families coping with chronic and/or serious illnesses. Siblings, who are often overlooked in these families, are of special concern to me. Depression, anxiety and grief and loss issues due to death, divorce and other life changes hold a special interest for me as well.

I specialize in counseling services that will meet your family's needs, such as: individual counseling for children and adults, couples/family therapy, play therapy, art therapy, parental counseling and coaching, Motivational interviewing, and advocacy for your child's needs. I utilize a strengths-based, supportive approach.

I have a lot of experience with children with special needs and their families. This is a growing area of concern which needs much nurturing and attention. I truly enjoy exploring clients' potential, and helping them learn much-needed coping skills which will aid them in leading fulfilling lives.

All of our journeys are unique. It is important that each individual finds a path to wellness that is comfortable for them. At times, life brings challenges and roadblocks that require us to seek outside supports. I strive to provide a safe and caring environment for individuals to explore and unpack life's difficulties. I provide effective care and give individuals the respect they deserve.

By endorsing a trauma-informed care (TIC) model, we recognize the prevalence of trauma and its impact on the lives of the people we serve. This therapeutic model aids in the development of the proper diagnosis and treatment plan, to provide the most comprehensive services to our clients.

Being a culturally competent therapist provides a safe non-judgemental environment for services. Patients are able to discuss their concerns openly and honestly to receive the best quality of care.

In one-on-one consultation, I guide clients on their path to emotional and spiritual vitality in an environment of acceptance and respect. I meld contemporary applications of ancient yogic teachings and Judeo-Christian spiritual traditions with practical Western psychological approaches. While I hold this work with regard, I also appreciate the ease that humor brings to facing challenges. It is not uncommon to enjoy good-natured laughter with clients as they engage with important questions. Areas of practice include: addiction recovery (alcohol, drugs, sex), eating disorders, compulsivity, mood disturbance, relationships, spiritual development, life purpose, and body-mind awareness.

I am trained as both a psychologist and a yoga teacher. I earned a doctorate in clinical psychology from the California School of Professional Psychology. I trained at the UCSF Cancer Center in body-mind psychotherapy and completed a post-doctoral fellowship in addictions at Kaiser Medical Center in CA.

I began yogic training in 2013 at Sachtidananda Ashram/Yogaville in their Yoga of Recovery[®] certificate program which integrated yoga, meditation, and traditional recovery tools for working with people with addictions and self-defeating life patterns. In 2014 I completed a 250-hour yoga teacher training at Asheville Community Yoga.

Thomas L. Murray Jr., Marriage & Family Therapist, PhD, LMFT, LPCS, Sex Therapist, CFMHE

Seeking Relationship 2.0? Wanting relief from a sexual concern? I coach clients to reignite desire, repair after infidelity, address painful sex, among other sexual and relationship concerns. Perhaps anxiety has kept you from seeking a sex or couple's therapist. There's hope: most highly motivated clients experience the bulk of therapy's benefits within a few sessions (6-8). Some, though, benefit from continued support. Regardless of where you are in your intimacy and sexual journey, I'm your champion towards creating a well-lived life. Visit my website, call or email to begin your journey to healing.

Within the Triad, I'm the only doctoral-level sex therapist certified by The American Association of Sex Educators, Counselors, & Therapists, the premier certifying body within the sexuality field. AASECT and I affirm the fundamental value of sexuality as an inherent, essential, and beneficial dimension of being human. As a public figure, I appeared on FOX8, WFDD, and other media outlets. As a private clinician and professor, my work emphasizes sex-positive views of human sexuality where I integrate Eastern philosophy with traditional psychotherapy, including Byron Katie, Acceptance and Commitment Therapy and Gottman Method Couples Therapy, among others.

Mood impacts the whole person, from their thoughts and emotions to their family life and physical health. Today, full recovery is possible, and there are many effective treatments to choose from including therapy, medication, supplements, light-box, and dietary and lifestyle approaches. Many of the therapies we specialize in are designed to work for particular problems, including CBT and Mindfulness for depression and anxiety, CBASP for chronic depression, EMDR for PTSD, Coaching for ADHD, Social Rhythm Therapy for Bipolar and Behavior Therapy for OCD. We also provide therapy for families, couples and specific therapies for sexual difficulties.

Our 25 clinicians have offices in Greensboro and Winston-Salem. Each of us has a unique specialty (see www.moodtreatmentcenter.com/therapistchart.pdf). We hope this flexibility allows you to find a good fit.

Have you ever considered group therapy? We are born into a group. We attend school in groups. We work in groups. We play together in groups. Life happens in groups! Group therapy is an exciting way to learn about ourselves in our relationship to one another. Group therapy is also cost effective.

I also work with individuals and couples. I work only with adults. I have a special interest and training in working with: depression, anxiety, trauma (EMDR), co-dependency, and OCD. I have a special interest in working with gay and lesbian clients . . . and those who love them.

I am always a student. I am currently training in a new therapy called Accelerated Experiential Dynamic Psychotherapy, AEDP.

I specialize in trauma recovery, but also treat a variety of issues, including depression, anxiety, relationship problems, and more severe disorders. I work with my client to find what therapy methods work best for her/him, as we are all different individuals with different needs.

I have worked with clients who are healing from different traumas for 15 years. I offer a therapy group for adult survivors of childhood sexual abuse, as well as broadly focused individual and couple's counseling. I believe strongly in helping to restoring client's sense of safety and choices.

Here at the Center for Holistic Healing, we believe strongly in the mind, body and spirit connection. Mental health counseling that is received through us can be in conjunction with massage therapy, acupuncture, yoga, and a variety of other services. I would love to hear from you!

G. Keilan Rickard, Psychologist, PhD, HSP-P

I started working in the mental health field in 2001 and have treated a wide range of concerns over the years. My treatment approach is simple: I listen and help you hear yourself in a new way. Gaining fresh insights, you can move with greater freedom through life (careers, relationships, and so on). I consider myself a generalist and offer individual psychotherapy to address any number of concerns. Please call for a free phone consultation to see whether I'm a good fit for you. In addition to individual psychotherapy, I provide assessments for transgender individuals who wish to pursue hormone replacement therapy or surgery. If you have any concerns about your sexuality or coming out, please call me.

NOTE: I do not work with current UNCG students in my private practice. I only accept payment by cash, check, credit card, or PayPal. If you have insurance, I will assist you in filing an out-of-network claim.
